For the ninth time, the Canton ATC ice hockey team has captured the NJCAA championship title, and for Terry Martin it’s the fifth in his coaching of the team.

Playing in the Olympic Arena at Lake Placid, the Northmen defeated University of Minnesota at Crookston by 113 in the first game of the tournament.

In the championship game, Canton ATC outscored North Country Community College 5-2.

Goals and assists in the first game against Crookston were as follows: Bob Flaro, 2 and 3; Gary Matura, 3 and 1; Guy Hoffberg, 1 and 2; John Bourbonnais, 4 assists; Brett Stewart, 1 and 2; Mike Albano, 1 and 1. Single goals were scored by Ed McCaffrey, Bob Stemmler, and Jerry Inebnit.

In the championship game, Flaro had 1 and 1; Mark Taylor of Canton had 2 assists; and single goals were scored by Joe Meagher, Scott Clements, Stemmler, and Bourbonnais. Other assists were: Steve McTierman, 2; and singles by Hoffman, Matura, Stewart, and Albano.

The last few years, Canton ATC’s hockey roster has developed a decidedly international flair with players from Canada and several states. But this year, while still having five states and Canada represented, the Northmen have a New York State bent with six men from Rochester and five from Northern New York. Three are home-town products, two of whom share tri-captain duties with Guy Hoffman of Rochester.

Coach Terry Martin says that the team has missed the scoring and physical play the second semester. He noted in particular Hunt’s overall “strength in the corners, speed, skating, and constant digging.” The senior forward was an All-Northern at Canton High School.

Another Canton All-Northern senior defenseman Mark Taylor. The tri-captain in the leading scorer, and, according to Coach Martin, excels on the power play and uses “devastating body checks to keep opposing forwards from moving freely in the defensive zone.”

Tri-captain Gary Matura gives full meaning to the expression “giving 110 percent.” Martin cites the Kempthorne, Ont., forward’s tenacious forechecking and constant full-speed movement. “When he’s ready to be replaced at the end of his shift, he’s usually just about totally exhausted.”

Hoffberg, one of six players from Rochester, took over Hunt’s tri-captain duties and has done the job for Martin both on and off the ice. Guy is able to motivate the other players as well as anyone we’ve ever had here.” The senior forward is the biggest player on the team at 6’3” and 210 pounds.

Each of the Rochester players attended different schools, but four of them were teammates on a junior team. Mike Albano, John Bourbonnais, Scott Clements, and Ed Landry all played two years for the Rochester Junior Americans.

Despite being only a freshman, as are all of the Rochester players, Albano has proven to be “a very capable center ice player,” Martin says, adjusting to the new position well enough to become one of the top five scorers. Bourbonnais spends a lot of time on the ice when there are less than the prescribed 12 players there. The hustling forward is an “excellent penalty killer” and has used his shooting ability on the power play to place third in scoring.

Clements is the type of versatile player every team needs, especially when injuries hit. He “has played very well at defense” and has filled in at forward very capably when needed.

Another outstanding defenseman, Landry also has “probably the hardest shot on the team has scored some big goals.”

Tom Blais, also a defenseman from Rochester, suffered a shoulder separation in the first game of the year and has not been able to crack the starting lineup since returning the second semester despite working hard.

Ed McCaffrey from Ogdensburg, Gerry Hourihan from Potsdam, and Jeff Proulx from Canton round out the North Country players. McCaffrey is one of the biggest players on the team at 6’1” and 205, but he is also one of the fastest.

The senior defenseman was a key player for Ogdensburg Free Academy.

The freshman Hourihan “has played in a lot of key games for us and has developed into a very fine collegiate goaltender.”

An All-Northern in football and baseball as well as hockey, Proulx “has made a tremendous adjustment from high school to college.”

From the other end of the spectrum are two freshmen from the suburbs of Chicago. Brett Stewart of Evanston is “a very disciplined winger who controls the corners with his physical and skating strength.”

Dan Perillo has taken over as the number one goaltender exhibiting “probably the quickest glove hand of any goalie we have ever had here.” Nicked off “The Ice man” for his ability to keep cool under pressure, the Addison native “never appears rattled and puts his heart into every game.” Perillo and Stewart had never played together before coming to ATC but had played on opposing teams.

Two players who had played on the same team before are seniors Steve McTierman and Jim Ward, who were members of the Carlton Place (Ont.) Kings.

According to his coach, McTierman has matured into one of the best forwards and one of the top scorers this year. Ward is “an agile defenseman who carries the puck extremely well.”

There are six other Canadian players on the team, including three who are among the scoring leaders. Athens, Ont., native Ted Dancy and Bob Flaro of Cornwall are freshmen forwards, and Kemptville’s Joe Meagher is a senior transfer.

Martin cites Dancy’s “ability to make plays develop and an uncanny sense of setting up his linemates in excellent scoring position.” Flaro is one of the smallest players on the team but also one of the fastest with one of the hardest shots. According to Martin, Meagher “plays with the most amount of poise of anyone on the team and has scored some of the prettiest goals of anyone we have ever had here.”

Dean McIntosh’s puck handling and shooting have been hampered this year by a wrist cast, but the Winchester, Ont., native has “made other contributions with his hustle and determination.”

Freshman Steve Whyte of Tren ton, Ont., has ridden his “great poise and confidence” and good play on the European trip into a starting spot in the lineup the second semester.

Gray of Napanee, Ont., Tim Trombley of St. Albans, and Syracuse native Mark Kemp are all freshmen who improve and contribute more each game.

Many factors affect the blood alcohol concentration (BAC). Some of the major factors are described below.

Body weight versus drinks consumed

In general, a heavier person can consume more alcoholic beverages than a lighter one to attain the same BAC level. The chart below shows BAC values for different weight groups according to how many drinks are consumed. The example uses 0.015 as an hourly rate of dissipation of alcohol from this system. This is an average rate and should be used with caution in making estimates.

Empty stomach versus full stomach: Food in the stomach will delay absorption and result in a lower BAC than would be obtained if the stomach were empty. In this case, calculations for BAC will be maintained for a longer period of time if the stomach were empty.

- Beer drinking and quantity consumed. The BAC also varies with the total quantity of alcohol consumed and the rate of drinking. In general, maximum BAC's are reached 20 to 30 minutes after consuming a single drink on an empty stomach. When drinks are consumed successively over time, the BAC rises with each drink, reaches a maximum 15 to 20 minutes following ingestion of the last drink, and starts to decline from this maximum. When several drinks are consumed in a very short period of time, peak BAC's may not appear until 45 minutes to 1 1/2 hours after ingestion of the last drink.

The table shows the estimated percent of alcohol in the blood for number of drinks consumed and different body weights. The percent can be estimated by doing the following:

1. Count your drinks (1 drink equals 1 ounce of 100-proof liquor or one 12-ounce bottle of beer or one 1.5-ounce bottle of hard liquor).
2. Find the percent of blood alcohol listed in the table under the number of drinks and opposite body weight.
3. To estimate the percent of alcohol burned up, decrease the figure in the table by .05 for each hour after the start of drinking.

BEHIND THE SCENE

by David Cordone

The Canton College Players have made way in preparing their Spring production "Dracula: The Musical," by Rick Abbot. Among the cast of eight are Sheldon Katz, Anne Mahoney, Karen O'Connell, and the two main leads will be performed by Steve Major, and Kathleen Hill.

Sheldon Katz is playing the part of Doctor Seward in this production. Sheldon is a professor at Canton ATC, and has a lot of acting experience. Sheldon has performed in many productions with the Canton College Players, such as "The Ghost Train," and "Annie Get Your Gun." Like director Carol Berard, Sheldon is also an active member in the Grasse River Community Players.

Anne Mahoney is playing the part of Sophie Seward in the production. Anne has acted in such productions as "The King and I," and "Peter Pan and the Truth About Cinderella." Her biggest role is acting the part of a student at Canton ATC, which she finds very challenging. Her hobbies range from skiing, sing, field hockey, to her most favorite, talking.

Karen O'Connell is playing the part of Nelly Norton, a nervous maid in this musical. She doesn't show up for opening night, so there will be no reason to explain it.

Steve Major is performing the role of Dracula in this Spring's production. Steve is a member of the "Grasse River Community Players," and has performed in musicals such as "Where's Charlie?", "Bye Bye Birdie", and "Anything Goes." Steve enjoys parties, vodka, and of course acting. He dislikes Mondays, Thursdays, and mornings, and people with no sense of humor. Steve enjoys his part in "Dracula: The Musical" and is looking forward to opening night.

Kathleen holds the other lead part in this Spring's production. Kathleen has performed in productions such as "It's a Bird, It's a Plane," and she is a member of Community Players of Governor. Other than acting, Kathy plays the piano, flute, and violin.

Everyone involved with this Spring's production are confident that all who attend will enjoy the musical explicitly.

"Dracula: The Musical," by Rick Abbot, will be performed in the Kingston Theatre at 8:00 p.m. on March 18th and 19th. There will be no admission charge.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE

FROM COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

"FROM THE MORTUARY..."

BY DR. RE

ADIPOCERE

Hello once again. After a few weeks of poor journalism technique, I have decided to take a different approach to this week's article. I have been accused of poor writing, being a pinhead, and a host of other patronizing adjectives. The bad thing is that most of my friends have, in fact, turned away. I have realized what friends I have, how much each one means to me, and how much each one means to me. I have also realized how easily they can be hurt or offended, especially Jacqui.

The great Mortuary Science 50-50 raffle was under way. You may purchase your tickets from any Mort. Sci. major for $1.00 apiece. The drawing will be held at 1 P.M. on Wednesday, April 6th. We would appreciate your support!

March 6th was a great time over at old John's patio. The chicken and pizza was a great time and thanks to a bunch of light weights. The golf course was in great shape that evening, not to mention most of us.

It was nice to see Mike Rennell for a short time also. One tries to figure out whether or not he was here to visit or to get a prerequisite course. I therefore apologize to those whom I have inadvertently hurt them as well. I therefore apologize to those whom I have inadvertently hurt them as well.

I have also realized how easy it is to unintentionally hurt them as well. In my apology last time, I was correct in saying that there are many of the Irish gender, in Mortuary Science, we take this time to wish all of you a happy St. Patty's Day!!! Erin go Braugh!!

Until next week, from Scott Schmidt.

Good-bye.

P.S. a belated birthday to our advisor, professor, and friend Ralph Klicker on March 12.

THE STAGE

IS SET

by David Cordone

The Canton College Players will perform their production "Dracula: The Musical!" by Rick Abbot, on March 18th and 19th at 8:00 p.m. in the Kingston Theatre.

Outside of ATC and Canton Central Schools, Carole is a founding member of "Gansevoort Community Players," and through this group she has successfully directed "Cactus Flower," and "Secret Affairs of Mildred Wild."

The music for the spring production will be directed by Sarah Edds. At present Sarah is a freshman at the Crane School of Music, Portland College, majoring in music education, with a concentration in piano and voice.

Both directors have brought encouragement and confidence to the cast of the production and are positive that all of their hard work will pay off on opening night.
COMPUTER THEFT IS BECOMING 'NUMBER ONE' CAMPUS CRIME

(CPS)--Despite the heralded advances that microcomputers are bringing to the college campus these days, the proliferation of the compact, lightweight, and easily-transported mechanical marvels is causing a growing problem with campus law enforcement agencies: they're too easy to steal.

"We're getting a lot more microcomputers on campuses these days..." as popular to steal.

Carnegie Mellon, which will require all entering freshmen to have their own micros within the next two years, is already planning a massive "Operation 1.D." program to register and identify the machines.

At Iowa State, "everyone who has access to a computer is briefed on recommended security procedures," Stormer says. "We recommend every computer be secured behind locked doors, and physically attached to a wall or table."

And at the Illinois Institute of Technology, where the campus computer center is open around the clock, every terminal is anchored down and the entire facility monitored through a closed-circuit system.

"At the very least," Louisville's Keller recommends, "all computer owners should "paint a big blotch of color on the outside of their machine" so it will be easy to identify."

Indeed, campus security directors across the country are frantically working to register, label, and bolt down thousands of microcomputers.

"By far, physical security of computers is becoming the number one priority of campus law enforcement officials," he reports.

IN BIZARRE SWITCH, STUDENTS FIGHT ADMINISTRATORS

FOR HIGHER FEES

(CPS) in a rather bizarre game of role reversal, students at some colleges are actually demanding fee increases from reluctant administrators, who worry they already charge too much for an education. And although no one knows for sure, such paradoxes could become commonplace as students realize they may be the only ones willing to bridge the gap in decreased funding for student services.

At the University of Denver, for instance, student groups have been pressuring administrators and the board of trustees to tack more money onto student fees.

"I think the students are being very responsible in looking at the effects of not raising fees," says DU student President Robert Lazarus.

DU students are asking for a nearly 10 percent increase in their fall fees to help support student organizations, the intramural sports programs, and the student health care center.

Inflation and funding cutbacks by the administration, the students say, have caused crippling shortfalls in the funds available for student services and organizations, and raising fees in the only way to make up for the decline.

Until last year, DU didn't even have a student activity fee. At that time, students convinced administrators that student fees would crumple if the $360 a year fee wasn't implemented. Part of the fee also goes to finance a new student center.

Even though a significant and unexpected decline in the number of entering freshmen, students want to raise fees by 9.5 percent, Lazarus says.

With 200 fewer entering freshmen this year as projected, he adds, student groups have already had to cope with funding shortfalls in mid-academic year, and they don't want the same thing to happen next fall.

But administrators and trustees aren't budging.

"In a price-sensitive market that all of higher education finds itself in today, we need to do everything we can to keep costs to a minimum," says DU Associate Vice Chancellor for Financial Affairs Will Gordon.

DU raised tuition by 19 percent last year, and by another nine percent for this year. Coupled with the new activity fee, Gordon says, officials believe the costs of attending DU is already dangerously close to pricing it out of the market for many students.

"The requested fee increase might not sound like much," he explains, "but nowadays any increase is viewed very closely by the students. We really do feel the competition."

Even the decline in freshmen enrollment, DU officials fear, may have been the result of high tuition. Raising fees even more, Gordon says, would probably result in more lost income.

"That's an unrealistic attitude," according to Lazarus. "Campus polls have shown that over 60 percent of the students favor an increase in the fee, and all the presidents of student organizations are behind it.

DU students aren't alone in their willingness to reach into their own pockets to keep student services afloat.

The student Senate at Willamette University in Oregon has just proposed an increase in student fees.

And in Kansas, the Fort Hays State University student government is also proposing a new student activity fee. "We are proposing the fee increase is necessary," they say.

"That way we're not always running to get more money," he explains. "We know they'll only increase tuition if there's a reason for it, and tying the student fee to that will insure that student services remain adequately funded.

That certainly is a switch," says Senate President John Weirich. "Now, because of a significant decline in freshmen enrollment, you'll see us trying harder than ever to keep costs down."

But administrators worry that a fee increase is not always necessary, as is financial aid based on need. In addition, several Outward Bound courses are offered year-round and last from 5 to 26 days. Information on how many people might be priced out of school by "necessary" fee increases.

OUTWARD BOUND OFFERS ADVENTURE EDUCATION TO MANY

Over 8,000 men and women, both adults and students, will take part in a unique program called "Outward Bound" this year. Designed so that participants will meet challenging experiences in wilderness settings at all times of the year, Outward Bound courses take place in more than a dozen states. While many come to Outward Bound seeking a taste of high adventure-and they'll probably get it-most will leave with a new understanding of themselves after discovering they are capable of doing things they might previously have thought impossible."Outward Bound believes many limits are self-imposed."

Backpacking, mountaineering, rock climbing, canoeing, skiing, snowshoeing, sailing, cycling, rafting, and even caving form the basis of the Outward Bound experience, depending on the environment in which the courses take place. Previous outdoor skills are unnecessary, as is special equipment other than personal clothing and boots. Each small group of students has one or more expert instructors and specialists who help them develop outdoor and interpersonal skills, culminating in a "final expedition," with minimal instructor supervision. Depending on what they have learned during the course. Academic credit is often available, awards and certificates are given, and based on need. In addition, several Outward Bound schools offer no-interest tuition loan plans, some up to three years.

THE KINGSTON TRIO CLOSE UP

In the twenty odd years reign as tops among modern folk artists, the Kingston Trio has recorded many top songs and hits. They are very diversified in their choice of songs. Woody Guthrie's "This Land Is Your Land", the Lercher Lotte Broadway's "They Call Me the Wind Man" and the English flavored "Three Jolly Coachmen". Their repertoire also included the rousing spiritual "Don't You Weep, Mary" and an exciting saga of the Old West, the tragic tale of "Jesse James". Although the Trio sang its share of well established hits, they also had a talent for finding new songs and starting them down the road to popularity. "Lemon Tree" later picked up by Trini Lopez, was such a tune, as is "It was a Very Good Year" which made a very good year for Frank Sinatra several years later. The moods are varied as the manner but the singular sound comes through, the sound of the Kingston Trio. Hear this great group perform and sing for you some of your favorites on March 20th at Hosmer Hall, Potsdam State University, Potsdam N.Y. Matine at 2:00 p.m. and evening at 7:00 p.m. Tickets are $6.25 and may be reserved by calling United Central Post Office, E.J. Noble Building, Canton, at 386-8191. They may also be purchased at the following; in Potsdam, Northern Music, LaGarry's Florist and ACS North; in Massena, Thousand Island Bus Lines; in Ogdensburg, Thousand Island Bus Lines, in Governor.
