

Micro Course Monday – How to Prepare Your Community for Future Disasters: Lessons from Sociology of Disaster

Micro Course	How to Prepare Your Community for Future Disasters: Lessons from Sociology of Disaster
Date	Monday, October 2nd
Time	3:00-4:00pm
In-Person Location	Dana Hall 228 – campus map – parking in lot 5
Online Link	Live online in Collaborate
Presenter	Dan McLane

MICRO COURSE MONDAY

HOW TO PREPARE YOUR COMMUNITY FOR FUTURE DISASTERS: LESSONS FROM SOCIOLOGY OF DISASTER

Join Dan McLane
on Monday, October 2nd at 3:00pm in Dana Hall 228 or live online in Collaborate

Public Safety

Wildfires, hurricanes and heat waves were often front-page news over the past year and unfortunately, disasters like these are expected to increase in severity and frequency in the coming decades. Sociologists have been studying disasters like these since the 1950's and the results of that study offer a few things that we can do to make our communities better prepared for the coming decades. This talk will answer questions like: Do people panic after a disaster? Should emergency shelters be open to pets? and When is a disaster not a disaster?

Still interested in the topic?

If you are interested in learning more about disaster response consider enrolling in SOCI 325, Sociology of Disasters, an online course taught by Dan McLane.

Enroll in the Emergency Management microcredential, which includes 4 courses (12 credits) where you will gain valuable knowledge in the distinct phases within emergency management science.