Grammarly Tutorial

Tutoring Services is pleased to offer students, faculty, and staff access to Grammarly, an online grammar-checking tool. Grammarly is a web-based application designed to help writers develop sentence-level writing skills, reinforce revision habits, and detect plagiarism. Simply upload drafts to Grammarly to receive instructional feedback.

You can access Grammarly via the Betty J. Evans Tutoring Center website or at <https://www.grammarly.com/edu/signin>.

Using Grammarly

Once you have logged in to Grammarly, you can create a new document or upload a previously saved document (.txt, .doc, .docx, .rtf) by browsing to the file.

You can also upload a document or copy and paste text from within the open document view, as shown below.

Customizing Your Feedback

You have the option of adjusting the types of checks that Grammarly conducts by hovering over the pen icon on the menu to the left and toggling selections on and off.

You can also choose the style and type of document you have uploaded in order to get feedback tailored to your assignment.

Viewing Feedback

Suggestions are shown to the right of the text. In this example, the user had selected “Academic Essay” as the document type, so you see suggestions to eliminate contractions, reduce wordiness, and avoid split infinitives.

A screenshot of the Grammarly interface showing a list of text on the left and a list of suggestions on the right. The text on the left includes "lige.", "those involved", "f possible", "ewarding lives", and "of what Trew". The suggestions on the right are: "shouldn't → should not", "it's → it is", "to always oblige → always to oblige", and "Wordiness".

You can expand each suggestion to view a card with an explanation for the suggested change. You can accept the change by clicking on the red and green text, or you can choose to ignore the suggestion.

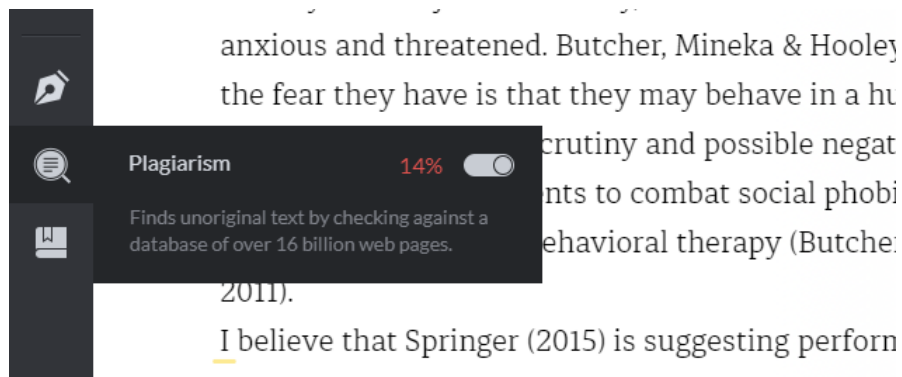

A screenshot of the Grammarly interface showing an expanded suggestion card. The card is titled "shouldn't → should not" and has a sub-heading "Contraction in formal writing". The text below the sub-heading reads: "Contractions, such as shouldn't should be used with less frequency in formal writing than in other communications. Consider replacing it with the full words." At the bottom right of the card, there is a red "X" icon followed by the word "IGNORE". Red arrows point from the text in the paragraph above to the "shouldn't" and "IGNORE" elements in the screenshot.

Plagiarism Detection

Grammarly offers limited plagiarism detection, checking text against web content and Proquest's databases. To use this feature, open any document and turn on the plagiarism detection feature on the left-hand side of the browser window.

Potentially plagiarized passages are indicated to the right of the text with recommendations to check for proper referencing. Grammarly may suggest citations or provide links to citation resources from Purdue's Online Writing Lab. Please note that ultimately users must determine whether plagiarism is present. Grammarly simply points to phrases that match text on the web, so plagiarized text, commonly-used phrases, and appropriately-cited text will all be flagged with the same recommendation to check for adequate citation.

Vocabulary Enhancement

You can also turn on vocabulary enhancement, which offers suggestions to expand your vocabulary.

Exporting Documents and Reporting Options

Downloading Your Text

Once you have determined which revisions are valuable in improving your paper, you have the option to either copy-and-paste the revised text into a new document or to download it. If you uploaded a file, Grammarly will download the file in the original file format. (Note: This also means that if you copied and pasted text into the window, the revised document will download as a .txt file.) The revised document will download with .edited appended to the filename, so if the original filename read AustenNarrative.doc, then the revised document from Grammarly would download as AustenNarrative.edited.doc.

Removing Grammarly's Comments

If you choose to download the edited text as a Word document, comments about the changes you made will appear in the right margin when you open the file. Instructors, however, will expect papers that are free of editing comments and notations, so to remove those comments, simply navigate to the Review tab in the ribbon and choose to Delete All Comments.

The image shows a Microsoft Word document with Grammarly comments. A callout box with the text "Don't want comments?" points to the comments in the right margin. The Review tab is active in the ribbon, and the "Delete All Comments in Document" option is highlighted in the "Delete" dropdown menu.

Reporting

You can also print a report of Grammarly’s suggested changes. At the bottom right-hand corner of the screen, you will see tally of “critical issues” and a score. This score does not equate to the grade that a professor would give the assignment. Instead, it is a way to measure your relative improvement over time.

If you click on the green score, you can view a quick summary and have the option to download a detailed report in .pdf form.

Grammarly Apps

Grammarly also offers extensions and add-ins for Google Chrome, Microsoft Office, and Windows. Go to “Apps” for installation instructions.
